

Arne Handley

Arne Handley has been working with clay for over 40 years through teaching and in his studio. Although there have been many years spent in the mountains of Western Canada and Central Japan, he credits the prairie skies for his go to colour inspirations. Primarily a functional potter, Arne sees himself on the “artisan” (as opposed to the “artist”) side of the ceramic discussion. Most of all, the main goal in the learning process for all ages is to enjoy that process.
