Guyanese-Canadian author NATASHA DEEN writes for kids, teens, and adults, and believes the world is changed one story at a time. She enjoys visiting schools, libraries and other organizations to help people to find and tell the stories that live inside of them. Her books have been CCBC Best Picks and Junior Library Guild selections, and nominated for awards including the Sunburst Award and the Alberta Readers' Choice Award. Natasha is the author of the Lark Ba series and the Guardian series. Her latest novel, In the Key of Nira Ghani is the 2020 winner of the Amy Mathers Teen Book Award, a Red Maple Honour Book, and was a Most Anticipated Teen Books for both Chapters-Indigo and Barnes & Noble.
