

Peter Potapoff

Peter Potapoff is an artist born and raised in Canada who has utilized his time in the surrounding wilderness to develop his artistic skills, capturing stunning landscapes and the creatures that reside within. Influenced by his own personal experiences hiking, plein air painting, photographing, and documenting the outdoors, Peter's research often takes him into the natural wilderness just outside his doorstep in Calgary, AB.

Peter's depth of knowledge and excellent communication skills create the ideal combination for a warm and engaging teaching environment in his workshops. His passion for the subject matter and dedication to his students' success means that Peter has developed a teaching method that combines workshop tutorials with one-on-one teaching time.

During his extensive artistic career, Peter has explored numerous themes including wildlife in their natural habitat, a diverse range of landscape, aviation, Canadian history, and personalised pet portraits. Specialising in the practice of commissions, Peter's ability to work with a client to realise a visual narrative is a pillar of his practice.

When taking a break from the easel, Peter can usually be found strumming a blues tune on one of his handcrafted cigar-box guitars.
