

Tatianna O'Donnell

Tatianna is an accomplished artist with numerous awards for her work, and her paintings are in print in various art books. She has exhibited nationally, and her paintings can be found in many public and private collections, such as The Alberta Foundation for the Arts and The Arctic Institute of North America, University of Calgary. She has been an artist in residence at such places as the Banff Center and Gushul Studios out of the University of Lethbridge. Tatianna was a contributor for many years to the local Enderby paper Rivertalk with articles about various topics on art.

Her passion for art began with art classes at a young age at the Montreal Museum of Fine Art. Arthur Lismer was the director of the school at that time and her education continued with workshops and university classes.

She is an elected member of both the Society of Canadian Artists and the Alberta Society of Artist and has served on the executive of both. Tatianna was instrumental in the startup of a co-operative style art gallery in Enderby, B.C. where she was president for 4 years and ran a successful artist's gallery which is still going today.

With a background in art education, Tatianna has been teaching and offering workshops and classes for over 15 years in Calgary, Canmore, Salmon Arm, Vancouver Island and Vernon, B.C. She has taught art through continuing education at Okanagan College and Mount Royal College in Calgary as well as through her own studio and local galleries. She has a knack for bringing out the best in each artist challenging them to find their own voice and providing feedback with encouragement.
