

Patricia Doyle

Patricia Doyle is a visual artist residing on the Bella Vista Hillside in Vernon, BC. While her primary medium is glass, she also works in metal, acrylics, mixed media, felt, clay, videography and photography.

Doyle's works are usually centered on both her love and awe of nature and her quirky sense of humour. She uses art to convey her vision of the world being a more harmonious and beautiful place.

Doyle teaches fused glass and glass bead-making classes at the Vernon Community Art Centre. She also teaches one week intensive glass bead making courses at Red Deer Polytechnic's Summer Series in Alberta every few years. She also hosts and produces a cable TV show with Shaw called Artisan's Alley that showcases notable artists and artisans from the North Okanagan.

While she does a limited number of shows and sales throughout the year, her work is available for purchase in a number of stores and gallery shops in Western Canada.
